7. Brief description of project activities:

Traditional learning conditions involve face – to-face contact and close Teacher-Student interaction. This has limitations: the availability and accessibility of a platform for full-time training, age criteria and time limits of the learning process. This makes the system of additional education unacceptable or inaccessible for many people.

Contemporary society offers an effective system of distance education, which does not have age, time and content requirements. But distance education in the field of academic fine arts is local and fragmentary. There is no single educational platform that combines all types of academic subjects: drawing, painting, composition, art History, from the initial stage to a high level of skill.

The existence of such a platform would effectively solve the problem of remote access to quality art education, not only to increase the level of competence, but also solve the problem of self-employment with limited opportunities for social contacts.

During the project, a number of activities are planned to create a distance educational platform for the art school:

- Creating a distance learning Cabinet, equipping it with technical tools and software;
- Creation of adapted training programs in Drawing, Painting, Composition and art History for distance learning of a full five-year course of education;
- Creating a multimedia database of distance learning lessons;
- Conducting online lessons and consultations;
- Organization of exhibitions for distance and full-time students;
- Organizing online meetings of professionals and art lovers;
- Organization of online master classes.
